Current Research

Legal Mobilization and International Justice: multi-year research project (NSF SES # 1322161) examining the effects of international courts on human rights and the dynamic interaction with interest and advocacy organizations.

- R. Cichowski & E. Chrun (2017). European Court of Human Rights Database (ECHRdb), Version 1.0, 2017. <http://depts.washington.edu/echrdb/>
The database includes over 15,000 judicial decisions from the European Court of Human Rights, 1960-2014. It is the first publically accessible database to systematically detail international court judgment data, alongside interest and advocacy organization participation, and the effects on domestic and international law. It relies on cross-national, time series legal data, collected through case law analysis, elite interviews, and archival documents. The project develops an interactive website housing the ECHRdb featuring an online analysis tool, data visualizations, and downloadable data files. Users are able to analyze international court data and advocacy group mobilization in innovative ways, informing the future of human rights protection and enforcement.
- Legal Mobilization and International Litigation (book manuscript): Project findings are being prepared as a book manuscript. The book identifies institutional variables explaining trends in interest and advocacy organization participation in ECHR litigation and the domestic and international effects, including three case studies in the area of criminal justice, health rights, and corporate litigation.
