

Checklist for Minor Requirements in Law, Societies, and Justice

Students may declare the LSJ minor any time after officially declaring a major and after reaching sophomore standing or higher (at least 45 college level credits). To actually declare the minor, meet with the adviser in your major department to fill out the minor declaration paperwork and to make sure that adding this minor will not slow down your satisfactory progress to degree.

Although being declared as an LSJ minor will not give a special preference when registering for classes, it will help the LSJ Program plan their curriculum to better satisfy the needs of students. If you are having difficulty getting into LSJ classes, please meet with an LSJ Adviser.

* For the LSJ minor, students may use additional LSJ Core Courses towards the Subfield requirements. LSJ 320/POL S 368, LSJ 321/ANTH 323, and LSJ 322/JSIS A 324 count in “Rights.” All other LSJ Core Courses count in “Comparative Legal Institutions.” This is intended to help students progress towards completion of the minor, but since the LSJ Core Courses are considered introductory, students are encouraged to give preference to the actual subfield courses as listed on the LSJ Approved Courses list.
